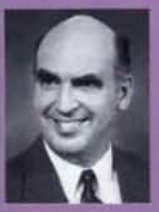
BJU REVIEW
Winter 1998

From the Refrigerator Door

BJU Faculty and staff have had several children's books released by the Journey Books division of BJU Press, including "Nantucket Cats," written by Dawn Watkins of the writing faculty; "No Pets Allowed" by Morgan Reed Persun and illustrated by student Tim Banks; and "Roses on Baker Street," written by Eileen Berry of the BJU Press and illustrated by John Roberts of the art faculty.

Dr. John Matzko, Chairman of the Division of Social Science, contributed three entries to the newly published Global Encyclopedia of Historical Writing.



Dr. Susan Quindag of the music faculty, presented a paper and workshop in July at the International Society for Music Education in South Africa. The paper was titled "Technology in Music Education: The Faustian Bargain;" her workshop was titled "Problem-Solving During Private Lessons."

BJU's Department of Cinema and Video Production received a 1998 Eastman Product Grant. The grant will help BJU's cinema department by providing $3,000 in Eastman Kodak Film stock.

David McQuaid, the Creative Services department, and the Printing Division were all honored by the Printing Industry of the Carolinas with a Special Judges PICA award for their roles in designing and producing the BJU Museum & Gallery promotional catalog.

Is There Life After

Sept2
Opening of the Fine Arts Building

The University officially opened the Sargent Art Building of the new Dwight Gustafson Fine Arts Center. This building is named for Earle and Eleanor Sargent, generous supporters of BJU with a special appreciation for the fine arts. The wing includes upgraded graphic design and computer facilities, as well as a brand new kiln and foundry. Classes began in the new rooms on Sept. 3.

Sept3-5
Society Rush

Part of the opening exercises of the 1998-1999 school year included Society Rush. Societies put their best foot forward to entice freshmen to join their society. Nearly 1200 freshmen made the agonizing choice of which society to join.

Sept30
Day of Prayer

The University cancelled all classes and set aside a whole day to spend time before God in prayer. The day started with a chapel service followed by two prayer sessions. After lunch, the students, faculty, and staff enjoyed a time of singspiration. The day closed with a final chapel service.

Oct10
Farm Fest

Farm Fest, held each year at the BJU farm, is an evangelistic outreach for teens from across the Southeast. Volunteers from the student body helped in setting up and running activities such as the rock-climbing wall, the human tractor pull, and the car bash. Farm Fest also included a time of preaching. Several hundred teens have accepted Christ during its 12-year history.

Dr. Dwight Gustafson, Fine Arts Dean Emeritus and accomplished composer, has been chosen to receive a 1998–99 ASCAP Award. These awards are given by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and are based on the individual's catalog of original compositions and recent performances of the works.

Dr. Bob Jones III received the Legion of Merit award on Commencement day, May 9, 1998. This award was presented to him by Major Billy Baugham and was given by the Associated Gospel Churches.

Missionary Emphasis Week

Students got a concentrated dose of missions this week, as one of our two missionary speakers addressed the student body daily in chapel. There were also special mission prayer band speakers, classroom speakers, and missionary displays. Thirty-four mission boards were represented by over fifty delegates.

Oct22

Senior Picnic

Just over 600 seniors were invited to attend a picnic hosted by Dr. and Mrs. Bob Jones III. Each year the seniors enjoy the Joneses' hospitality and a tour of their home, as well as a time to socialize with their classmates.

about the cover

Each year faculty and staff "adopt" freshmen as their "campus children" to try to make the adjustment to college life easier. Roger and Carole Frederick have always taken a special interest in their "kids" and keep track of them through all four years of college. Faith Thomas, Tricia Stebbins, Donna Shoemaker, Tara and Charisse Rodman, Nicole Strickland, Wendy Shoemaker, Becky Branch, and Marcie Miller (left to right) recently enjoyed baking cookies at the Frederick home.

Facilities Management

Without them, we would all attend classes in dark, cold, drafty buildings with leaky roofs and pipes, sitting on splintered chairs, looking past the peeling walls out through broken windows onto desolate lawns covered with crabgrass, overgrown bushes, and red South Carolina mud.

Perhaps it's a bit of an overdramatization, but the work of the people of Facilities Management is no less essential to the mission of BJU than that of the faculty or the administration. "This is really a ministry with tools," says Mr. Dick Carson, director of facilities management. "It requires just as much of a calling as a preacher or a teacher."

The 150 employees on these four pages view their jobs as a ministry, and although their work is behind the scenes, it is work that BJU simply could not function without. "We invite those men and women who are gifted by God in the skilled trades to prayerfully ask the Lord if it would be His will for them to serve here."

UNDER THE COVE

From time to time we hear rumblings out there that some of you don't think there's enough "real" information in the BJUReview. (Honest—we do try to fill each issue with as much "real" stuff about BJU as we can. In just the last few issues, we've had articles about unusual work scholarship jobs, faculty and staff members who pastor churches, a retrospective on Dr. Bob Jr.'s life, a unique art and drama program, profiles of four campus organizations, help on choosing a society, and coverage of BJU's summer mission teams—all 17 of them.)

But just in case that's not enough, we will start a new feature in every issue, called Under the Covered Sidewalks. It's basically a question-and-answer section—you ask us your most pointed questions about BJU, and we'll try our best to answer them. We figure there's no better way to get "real" information in the magazine.

Of course, Q & A columns don't work really well without questions, so that's where you come in. E-mail your questions to review@bju.edu or write to BJUReview, 1700 Wade Hampton Blvd., Greenville, SC 29614. We can't promise to respond personally to all the questions we get, but if we publish your question we'll send you a cool BJU T-shirt.

So without further ado . . .

Speaking of "covered sidewalks," why do you have them?

Although Greenville is in the lovely state of South Carolina, it does have its share of unusual weather. Spring and fall are two of the most beautiful seasons, but they bring with them an occasional rain that, well, defies conventional umbrella defenses. (Let's just say that on those days it would not be unusual to see people walking with their umbrellas in front of them instead of above them—it truly works better that way!)

To help combat this wind-driven horizontal precipitation, back in the 1960s BJU installed awnings over many of the most-travelled sidewalks. Students now can get to class a bit drier (and in the late spring and early fall, a bit cooler, too).

RED SIDEWALKS

I heard a rumor that you don't allow students to bring cars to campus. Why not?

Believe it or not, the rumor is WRONG! (That hardly EVER happens with rumors, right?) Any university student who wants to bring a car to BJU can. We provide parking very near the dormitories, as well as a patrolled, lighted lot just off campus.

However, since parking space is limited on campus (we've got 1400 spaces, but it's still not enough), we allow only juniors and seniors to park in the on-campus spaces. (Call it one of those upperclassmen perks, I guess.) Freshmen and sophomores may still use their cars for extension ministries or for trips home.

I watched a Shakespeare movie on PBS the other night, and it had some violence and sexual situations in it. Why does BJU do Shakespeare productions if they have these kind of elements?

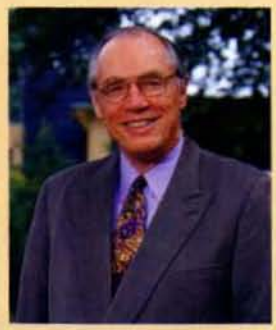
First, consider that, in order to make the play more "commercially appealing," the Hollywood producers probably emphasized and embellished the violence and sensuality of Shakespeare's original text.

Second, when BJU produces a Shakespearean play, we are very careful that the true moral tone that was intended in the original text is portrayed on stage. Our guide is the Bible—it, too, deals with violence and sexual sin, but never in a way that is salacious or gratuitous, and always in a way that makes very plain the destructive results of the sin.

King David's sin with Bathsheba is referred to, but not described in graphic detail; II Samuel 12 makes very plain the consequences of his sin. Likewise, when Cassius and Brutus assassinate Julius Caesar in Shakespeare's play, they, too, receive retribution for their sin: they are both killed by the end of the play.

We believe that it is important that our students experience these excellent works of literature and culture. We are very careful, however, that in their portrayal, good triumphs over evil and no objectionable elements are glorified or emphasized.

The President's Corner



Sometimes you find something so good that you just can't keep it to yourself. The following is one, which I discovered from State Representative Mitchell Kaye from Cobb County, GA. It was originally published by Lewis W. Napper on his website.

"We, the sensible people of the United States, in an attempt to help everyone get along, restore some semblance of justice, avoid any more riots, keep our nation safe, promote positive behavior and secure the blessings of debt-free liberty to ourselves and our great-great-great grandchildren, hereby try one more time to ordain and establish some common sense guidelines for the terminally whiny, guilt-ridden delusional, and other liberal, commie, pinko bedwetters.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that a whole lot of people were confused by the Bill of Rights and are so dim that they require a Bill of No Rights.

Article I–You do not have the right to a new car, big-screen color TV or any other form of wealth. More power to you if you can legally acquire them, but no one is guaranteeing anything.

Article II–You do not have the right to never be offended. This country is based on freedom, and that means freedom for everyone — not just you! You may leave the room, turn the channel, express a different opinion, etc., but the world is full of idiots, and probably always will be.

Article III–You do not have the right to be free from harm. If you stick a screwdriver in your eye, learn to be more careful; do not expect the tool manufacturer to make you and all of your relatives independently wealthy.

Article IV–You do not have the right to free food and housing. Americans are the most charitable people to be found, and will gladly help anyone in need, but we are quickly growing weary of subsidizing generation after generation of professional couch potatoes who achieve nothing more than the creation of another generation of professional couch potatoes.

Article V–You do not have the right to free health care. That would be nice, but from the looks of public housing, we're just not interested in public health care.

Article VI–You do not have the right to physically harm other people. If you kidnap, rape, intentionally maim or kill someone, don't be surprised if the rest of us get together and kill you.

Article VII–You do not have the right to the possessions of others. If you rob, cheat, or coerce away the goods or services of other citizens, don't be surprised if the rest of us get together and lock you away in a place where you still won't have the right to a big-screen color TV or a life of leisure.

Article VIII–You do not have the right to demand that our children risk their lives in foreign wars to soothe your aching conscience. We hate oppressive governments and won't lift a finger to stop you from going to fight if you'd like. However, we do not enjoy parenting the entire world and do not want to spend so much of our time battling each and every little tyrant with a military uniform and a funny hat.

Article IX–You do not have the right to a job. All of us sure want you to have one, and will gladly help you along in hard times, but we expect you to take advantage of the opportunities in education and vocational training laid before you to make yourself useful.

Article X–You do not have the right to happiness. Being an American means that you have the right to pursue happiness — which, by the way, is a lot easier if you are unencumbered by an overabundance of idiotic laws created by those around you who were confused by the Bill of Rights."

I've read this to the students in Chapel this year in the hopes it will help them better understand how to be good citizens and live responsibly without abuse of the freedom that characterless people of this nation engage in.

I thought many of you would enjoy this as much as I did.

Behi Scenes

"This is as close as you can come to doing the real thing," says Bridget Barcott, a senior broadcast journalism major and the editor of this year's Collegian, the campus newspaper. "There's never a dull moment, and you are never really done."

"The Collegian is such a good experience," Bridget says. "I am getting comprehensive experience, because the Collegian is entirely student-run. I feel this is preparing me for my internship and my future job."

The Collegian staff interviews, writes, edits, and does layouts for this award-winning biweekly publication. A great deal of responsibility falls on the editor as well as all staff involved. Therefore, much thought and prayer goes into choosing new staff members. "I'll interview prospective staff members and ask them how well they work with people and how they deal with pressure," Bridget says.

Each issue of the Collegian begins to form as the staff writers interview and write articles. Article assignments and photo assignments are given out on Tuesday. The following Monday the first drafts are due, followed by the second draft the next Monday. By that Thursday, the articles are edited and flowed into the layouts using Macintosh computers. Pictures and advertisements are scanned in and added to the developing paper. Then the paper is edited, edited, and edited some more. On the following Tuesday, the paper is sent electronically to the printing division to be printed and distributed by Thursday.

Bridget admits, "It scares me. I was a staff writer last year, and this is new to me. It is challenging, but I'm excited. The Lord has made it clear that this is what He wants me to do, so He will give me the strength and ability to do it."

Behind the Scenes

ISDA

"Don't be afraid to try new things," challenges Robert Holland, senior humanities major and president of the Inter-Society Debate Association (ISDA). Debate? You don't have to be "good" at it to join, and even freshmen can participate. "As Christians going out into the real world, we need to articulate ideas," Robert says. "People have the bad idea that debate is just about confronting someone, but that's not it. We try to train people to articulate what they believe and why."

Every society is required to field a debate team first semester, and the ISDA council serves as their training and support team. "We will spend two to three hours just working with debaters on the year's topic, giving them direction on where to go," Robert says. "It takes a lot of work for the council, but we are trying to get people excited about debate."

The ISDA council also plans a barbecue first semester and a dessert after the debate tournament second semester. "We also have to promote the organization, and we have to be there to help anyone who has questions," Robert says. "We are constantly trying new ideas too. This year we changed the format of first semester debate, from two-man debate to one-man debate. I like it better. We are hoping that the societies will like it too."

The best part about ISDA is getting to know the people. "I like meeting people with similar aspirations," Robert says. "Debate is a great way to do that."

Care Packs

Students love them. (Their roommates probably love them even more.) Some are carefully hand-packed with homemade goodies; others go the more commercial route with "essentials" from Kellogg's and Nabisco.

But a slip in your BJU p.o. box telling you to come by the post office for a package is always a welcome sight. We stopped a few unsuspecting students in mid-September after they picked up their care packages and persuaded them to show us the contents of their boxes. Here are just a few representative samples (and their proud new owners!).

The Diamond Jubilee Campaign

In 2002 Bob Jones University will celebrate its 75th anniversary. By God's grace, for nearly seventy-five years BJU has trained Christian young men and women to be Fundamentalist leaders among pastors and laymen.

Yet without the high quality educational leaders, faculty, and staff that God has sent to serve here, the nearly 72,000 students from around the world would have found BJU a far different place.

For years, both faculty and staff have served the University and its students faithfully at BJU while earning sacrificial salaries. In this era of increasingly heavy burdens on students and their families, there is absolutely no way the University can compensate the faculty and staff adequately and fairly without raising tuition beyond the level its constituents can afford.

It is for this reason that BJU is undertaking the Diamond Jubilee Campaign, a fundraising effort to provide an endowment to supplement faculty and staff salaries.

The campaign is built upon the feedback we received from numerous BJU alumni and friends through their responses to surveys sent out in early 1998. According to those surveys, the majority felt that the most immediate need at BJU is such an endowment fund.

The goal of the Campaign is to raise a minimum of $5 million as the beginning of a $25 million endowment that would produce sufficient interest to provide faculty and staff two or three extra paychecks per year, in addition to the annual increases the University already tries to give.

With a strong sense of God's leading, over the next several months, highly organized efforts will begin among the Board of Trustees, faculty/staff, alumni and friends of BJU from around the world to make this goal possible.

The Diamond Jubilee Campaign will be a three-year pledge effort that we feel is vital to helping the University maintain its commitment to spiritual and academic excellence into the 21st century.

For further information about the Campaign, please contact us at (864) 242-5100.

College Financing Tips

"Parents can now pre-pay their children's college tuition" was the thrust of the headline recently in our local paper. One of the state's large universities had started the program, and the paper had carried it as front-page news. I guess at BJU we're just a little ahead of the times: we have been offering a very similar program for almost a decade now!

It's called the Turn-of-the-Century Club, and it offers parents and grandparents a chance to pay for their children's or grandchildren's college education at today's prices. Just think of all the savings!

Tuition rates usually increase four to seven percent each year. In 2011 a year of tuition, room and board at BJU might cost nearly $20,000. It's no wonder the cost of a college education is one of the fastest-growing expenses facing today's families!

If your son, daughter, or grandchild will be entering college between the years of 2002 and 2011, the Club allows you to pay for one, two, three, or all four years of their education in lump-sum, semi-annual, quarterly, or monthly payments, while locking in today's rates.

This offer isn't limited to one child per family. If you have more than one eligible child, you can pay for their membership as well. Don't worry! There is absolutely no risk! If, for any reason, your child or grandchild is unable to attend BJU, every penny of your investment will be refunded. So, there's nothing to lose, except time, if you wait.

Join the Turn-of-the-Century Club today and give your child or grandchild the best gift of all—a promising future.

If you would like a brochure with complete information about the Turn-of-the-Century Club and payment schedules, just fill out and mail in the response card in the middle of the BJU Review, or call us at (864) 242-5100, Ext. 3020.
